Government must take control to halt or ease rampant inflation

Austerity in personal budgets and government budgets is a must to halt the havoc of rampant inflation, but it is naive to believe people will force austerity on themselves, a West Texas State University economist said last week.

Dr. Barry Duman, head of the economics department, said consumers must refrain from consuming and government must take an active role in ensuring that consumer demand is stifled.

Duman talked with The News following a major speech on Thursday night by President Nixon on the state of the nation's economy, a state which is making major news in national magazines and newspapers.

He criticized the apparent Nixon government hands-off policy in respect to the economic woes of the country.

"I don't see his solution as workable," Duman said. "He's not doing anything. He said he'd cut back on 40,000 federal employees, but that's such a small thing compared to the magnitude of the problem."

The magnitude of the problem is great, Duman feels, great enough to warrant government action to force economic restraints.

While he said most economists agree that a 3-4 per cent inflation rate is acceptable for the nation's economy, a rate of 5-6 per cent becomes "difficult to live with."

Over the past year, the inflation rate has climbed to between 10 and 12 per cent.

A cut in the federal budget of $5 billion, or the presentation of a balanced budget are not the answers to solve the problems of inflation, he said, speaking of Nixon's proposals.

He noted that deficit financing has become "a well accepted way of handling economic affairs. Deficit financing has been broadly blamed for all our ills. It's not the cause of the problem."

Duman said a $5-billion budget cut sounds good, but will, in fact, be hard to swallow. To cut that much from the budget would require cutting of federal programs.

"If you cut federal spending are you going to cut veteran subsidies or people on welfare or cut the depletion allowance?" he asked. "It's a difficult thing to do."

In addition, Duman said the President's call on the people of the country to voluntarily cut their household spending is naive.

He agrees that consumers must stop the zeal to spend, but he believes voluntary compliance won't do the job.

"We want all we can get and we need increasingly more money," Duman said.

Inflation has generated in the people an inflation psychology and an attitude which says, "I'd better buy today because the price will be higher tomorrow."

The concept is rooted in the fact that many businessmen and people have no confidence in the future, Duman said.

"We have to start to believe the situation is controllable," he said. "We need confidence that the administration can do something."

Is the situation controllable?

Yes, Duman believes.

"We're a sophisticated enough society that we can solve this problem," he said, "but we have to divorce politics from economic reality."

Duman's solution is much akin to the President's. But, he advocates that the government again begin functioning in a leadership role.

"Government has to start functioning again," he said. "The Watergate thing and other political problems have been there and they haven't been able to cope with these (economic) problems."

Duman sees the need for an infusion of new ideas in terms of regulation of the economy, regulation from the governmental level.

Professional film being readied on Canyon area assets by board

A five-minute professionally produced film on Canyon and its assets is being prepared for the Board of City Development.

The film, which will be available for promotion of industrial growth and local expansion, is being produced by Bill Rhew, professional and well-known Amarillo photographer.

Raymond Raillard, chairman of the BCD, said the five-minute film, for which Rhew has been filming from ground and helicopter, will present Canyon "as a good place to live, bring an industry or raise a family."

The film will include footage of the schools, churches and businesses both from the air and from ground-level. Some footage will be of West Texas State University.

Recreational sites in and around Canyon will also be included, sites such as Palo Duro Canyon, the musical-drama "TEXAS," the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum and the various golf courses in the area.

Sporting events at Canyon High School and the university will be featured as will other recreational facilities and attractions.

"If you see this film," Raillard said, "you'll want to come to Canyon."

Raillard said the film will have primary value in attracting industry to the Canyon area. Likewise, he said, if an industry has already decided to locate in the Amarillo vicinity, the film can show employees the advantages of life in Canyon.

Now Supt. Jacobs seeking answers on annex issue

Canyon school superintendent Jerry Jacobs has joined Dist. Atty. George Dowlen in seeking answers to several specific questions regarding the possible annexation of land by the Amarillo School District, land now in the Canyon district.

In a letter to the Texas Attorney General, Jacobs asked for guidance on several specific points concerning annexation and reiterated in a strongly worded statement the Canyon School Board is not interested in allowing any property to be annexed by Amarillo.

"The Canyon Independent School District is meeting the educational needs of its students as required by law," Jacobs' letter states: "At the present time we are not willing to have any territory detached for the convenience of a land developer and/or persons that have recently purchased homes within our school district."

The letter is a follow-up to a request written by Dowlen earlier this month to the Attorney General seeking advice on what procedure the Randall County Board of School Trustees, a county-wide elective board, should follow in considering a petition for annexation of about 50 acres of land by Amarillo's district. The letter also seeks advice on the legality of the election procedure used last spring when three members were elected to the board of trustees.

The two information requests are also germaine to a civil lawsuit filed July 13 in district court here alleging the trustee elections were illegal and asking the court to instruct the county trustees to decide in favor of detachment of the 50-acre tract from the Canyon district for annexation by the Amarillo district.

In his letter, Jacobs asks for clarification of one Texas statute which outlines the procedure for detachment in the event members of the Canyon School Board refuse to consent to the detachment. The statute sets out a complicated and ambiguous formula for figuring the number of school children living in the area.

Jacobs also asks the Attorney General for an opinion on whether the Canyon School District could be reimbursed, in the event detachment is forced, for the loss of future tax revenues anticipated but lost due to the detachment.

School Board members have been reluctant to seriously consider detachment of the property, which now is the site for about six houses constructed by Developer Glenn O'Dell.

In the past, they have said they would consider detachment for Amarillo annexation only if the detachment were made profitable to the local district.

Five residents of the O'Dell subdivision, which lies within the Amarillo city limits south of Amarillo High School, filed suit in 47th District Court here to force the county school trustees

Wildcat well could impact on Randall

A wildcat oil drilling operation west of Hereford could have far-reaching ramifications for future such operations in Randall County as American oil producers, hungry to explore new, untapped sources of petroleum on the continent, spread their search to the formerly unfruitful Palo Duro Basin.

Drilling began Friday by Colorado Interstate Gas Co. on an 8000 foot well west of Hereford in Deaf Smith County. Drilling is expected to be completed within about 30 days.

The results of the Deaf Smith well could well spell the future for other wells exploring in the tapped but nonproductive basin which lies under much of the Texas Panhandle south of Amarillo.

Dr. George Asquith, professor of geology at West Texas State University and formerly a geologist with a major oil company, said American producers are even advertising in trade journals for information on new oil possibilities.

"They're very hot to find a new basin," he said.

A producing well in the Palo Duro Basin could spell a move by other major companies into the basin area for drilling activities, he said.

Already in the past year, major oil companies have been quietly purchasing leases on Randall County land, according to the county clerk's office.

Last major activity in the

Taxpayers virtually without remedy on county's illegal taxing structure

The newly-passed county tax system may be illegal, but there's not much taxpayers can do about it, a review of recent court rulings and attorney general opinions indicate.

The illegality of the system violates no criminal statute, and a venture into civil court for taxpayers would involve proof of something which is believed not to exist in the county.

An injunction in district court could be sought to keep the county from collecting taxes from individual property owners through the illegal taxing system, but injunctive relief would not be forthcoming unless the taxpayer could prove the tax system caused him substantial real injury.

Likewise, court cases and opinions indicate a taxpayer suing due to an illegal county tax plan must prove substantial injury or real discrimination in order to win court approval.

A case out of Dallas, decided by the Court of Civil Appeals there, illustrates the problem.

The case, Lancaster Independent School District Vs Sam W. Pinson, was decided in May 1974 and an injunction was denied Pinson because he had not proven substantial injury due to the illegal tax plan in the school district, a tax plan much like the one used in Randall County.

Pinson owned unimproved acreage and sued for an injunction and mandamus to restrain Lancaster and the school district from putting into effect a tax plan raising the value of unimproved acreage without a corresponding revaluation of other property.

Likewise, in Randall County, county commissioners asked Mrs. Audrey Bruse, tax assessor-collector, to assess taxes this year based on 100 per cent valuation on commercial properties and 85 per cent of 100 per cent valuation on all other real property. In doing so, the commissioners raised the percentage level for taxation purposes from 50 per cent for rural real property to the 85 per cent level, and the percentage level for taxation purposes from 75 per cent to 85 per cent for subdivision real property. Rural homeowners and homeowners of property in various subdivisions received a tax increase while commercial property owners and personal property owners did not.

The court of civil appeals in their May decision indicate the burden is on the property owner to prove substantial injury.

"Whether injunctive relief is sought before or after an illegal assessment plan is put into effect, taxpayers must show substantial injury in order to obtain injunctive relief against such a plan; that is to say, they must show that the plan would discriminate against them by deliberately assessing their property at a greater percentage of its true value than the percentage assessed for other properties subject to the tax," the court's opinion states.

The court notes that the Lancaster system had unimproved acreage on the tax rolls at 45 per cent of market value while other classes of property were on the roll at 70 to 75 per cent of market value.

"Defendants admit they raised the valuations of plaintiff's properties without a corresponding increase in valuations of other properties, but they insist that this action did not result in discrimination against plaintiffs, since it was only a partial correction of a previous discrimination in plaintiff's favor," the court says.

In essence, the court said a taxpayer must provide proof of

Entering a dust cycle? Couldn't be bad as '30s

The prospect of a prolonged drought in Randall County and the Panhandle and South Plains area has local agriculture officials worried about the potential for dust storms and the resulting loss of valuable top soil.

Bill Casteel, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, said Randall County farmers lost an estimated 8800 acres of soil from October 1 through April 1 to winds whistling across the dry Plains.

With the potential great that the area could be entering a drought cycle, he's worried the figures will go higher this summer and next year as farmers begin losing crops and the consequent ground cover necessary to thwart blowing.

He's flatly afraid "that we ain't seen nothing yet — unless we get some rain and get stuff growing."

Crop residue is the key to holding down blowing dust, Casteel said, and he said Randall County farmers are doing a good job of soil conservation.

Even if a predicted prolonged drought occurs in the Panhandle, modern practices to conserve soil will probably assure local residents they won't have to live through another Dust Bowl era.

The massive dust storms of the 1930s, according to research in the files at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, were another turn in the cycles

Caffeine, nicotine, aspirin due research look

Do such common drugs as caffeine, nicotine and aspirin cause genetic damage to persons using them, damage which may plague future generations?

That's the question to be explored this fall under a West Texas State University research grant by graduate students and Dr. Douglas Bingham, professor of biology.

Two graduate students and the professor will spend the next academic year studying the effects of three common drugs found in coffee and soft drinks (caffeine), cigarettes (nicotine), and aspirin on the basic material of life, DNA.

The research stems from research Bingham pursued during work for his doctorate at the Los Alamos Research Center of the Atomic Energy Commission, work on genetic transformation.

In his AEC research, Bingham removed DNA, the material which makes up the genes in all living things, from one set of bacteria, treated it with materials and then introduced the genetic material into other bacteria to test the results.

The process used by Bingham was the forerunner of research in "genetic engineering," a term used by the popular media to describe the potential ability to produce in man the characteristics introduced through transformation of the genetic material.

Genetic engineering, Bingham says, is far in the future as a practical reality, but in the meantime his research proposal will break new ground in research concerning the effects of certain drugs on genetic material, effects which might not show up in the general population for many generations.

For the research project, Bingham proposed to use the same methods developed in his research at Los Alamos to expose bacteria to nicotine, caffeine and aspirin and watch for resulting genetic difficulties.

"All these drugs we've been exposing ourselves to that are not a part of our natural environment, like food preservatives and so on, we've only been exposed to for a few years," Bingham said. "The effects would not show up for maybe 200 years or so because of the complexity of the human organism."

By using bacteria, which have only one set of genes, as opposed to the human, which has thousands, researchers will be able to tell much more readily what effects the drugs have on genetic material.

In simplified form, the researchers will extract DNA from one set of bacteria, treat the genetic material with the drug, remove as much of the drug as possible from the DNA, then introduce the material into another set of bacteria to watch for genetic changes.

"We don't know what's going to happen," Bingham said of the results. "If it turns out there is some reduction in biological activity of the genes, we're not saying they'd be damaging humans but maybe we should take a closer look before we put them to wholesale use."

Bingham said while caffeine, aspirin and nicotine are in widespread use in this country, to his knowledge the FDA does not require the kind of genetic effect testing which he proposes. Before a drug may be marketed, it must be tested for effects biologically, but not genetically, he said.

Many of the FDA required tests, in addition,

Organize And Revolt

By ANN BROWN

Inflation, according to a recent research report from Newsweek, is not merely a national problem but a global plague.

Never before in recorded history has inflation erupted world wide; why now?

Money is of value only as a medium of exchange. Any area that has more money available than goods and services has inflation.

More goods and services available than money create depression.

The ideal economic situation is an equal balance between money available, and the goods and services produced.

Inflation and depression relate much like two children on a seesaw. The weight of the children is not nearly as important as their skill in maintaining a proper balance.

For any plague to become world wide, it must have a common source. Probably everyone who can read is convinced that American money poured into the nations of the world in the guise of foreign aid generated this plague.

There is no precedent in history to substantiate the argument that international peace can be maintained with money. Rome didn't do it that way, nor Great Britain.

We give money to one nation; they buy arms and attack their neighbors. It's only fair that we give money to the neighbors to defend themselves. So goes the vicious circle.

Any time money is pumped into any economy without being earned by the goods and services of its citizens it creates inflation.

The American people never voted to give $253 billion plus away in foreign "aid." To take money by force from the people who earn it (what else could the income tax be called?), and give it to people who have not earned it is arrogant tyranny and licentious larceny.

Billions of American dollars have been poured into nations that the average American never heard of. It is questionable which has suffered the most damage — sender or recipient.

Zaire received $498,900,000; Sri Lanka $201,300,000; Botswana $33,200,000; Mali $34,100,000; and Dahomey $14,500,000, etc.

Rich little Kuwait received $20,300,000. The island paradise of Bermuda got $34,000,000. And even the independent little Switzerland that has always managed to keep a healthy economy despite their barren acres has been corrupted by $46,600,000.

The communist countries came in for their share of despised American dollars and resulting inflation. Russia got $186,400,000 (that does not include the latest wheat gift); Yugoslavia got $2,535,600,000; Czechoslovakia got $189,500,000; and Cuba got $45,500,000.

The really big handouts, however, went to Vietnam with some $21 billion; Korea $12 billion; India $8 billion; France $7 billion; United Kingdom $7 billion; Italy $6 billion; Turkey $6 billion; and Japan $4 billion.

Can anyone specify anything those nations have ever done to earn all that money?

Of course, the United Kingdom (England) did fight us in a couple of wars. Japan gave us the Pearl Harbor incident, Bataan, Iwo Jima, and a few others; and Turkey has sent us a lot of heroin.

Apparently, every nation in the world is suffering from inflation in direct proportion to the abundance of American dollars poured out there. Vietnam heads both lists. They report 50 per cent inflation per year.

In spite of the traditional industry and thrift of the Japanese, the cost of living rose at least 25 per cent there last year. Inflation has sharply curtailed tourism, to the little island's detriment and displeasure. And inflation has about priced them out of the export market.

Since it has become obvious that wild spending here and abroad has created inflation, doesn't our government want to curb spending?

The opposite.

While Herbert Stein, Nixon's chief economic adviser, tells American taxpayers to tighten their belts, Uncle Sam lets his out to cover a record $304 billion dollar budget to fuel the fires of inflation. (Your share of that $304 billion is $4,362.)

And Defense Secretary James Schlesinger wants to send some $2 billion to Israel, $1 billion to Indochina, $400 million to Egypt, etc., to keep the plague going abroad.

Isn't it time to organize the taxpayers' revolt that everybody has been talking about?

What Do I Do Now?

By CARROLL WILSON

I'm as patriotic as the next guy. President Nixon asked last fall that I turn down my thermostats over the winter. They were set at 68 degrees though my wife griped bitterly.

He asked that I cut down my speed to 55 miles per hour. I'm still driving at 55 even though I seem to be the only driver on the road doing so.

Now, he asks that I stop buying things, stop spending money.

Turning down my thermostat was a simple act. I had the mechanical know-how to do it. I just reached over and turned it down.

Slowing my speed was simple, too. I just eased my foot off the accelerator and watched the speedometer needle swing back to the left.

But, I'm scratching my head on how I'm going to do as Nixon says and stop buying stuff.

How, I ask, am I going to stop spending more for goods and services, when the people I buy those goods and services from keep raising prices?

How am I going to stop buying milk, for example, when my daughter has to have it but the price keeps rising?

Does the President honestly believe that if I can buy a new house today for $35,000, I'm going to voluntarily hold off for a year and then buy the same house for $50,000?

Where do I begin cutting? Do I quit buying toothpaste? Do I ask Pioneer Natural Gas Co. to extend me some credit so I can just pay part of my gas bill this month? When electric company rates go up in August, do I tell them to listen to the President and quit hiking prices? Or do I tell them I'm a concerned citizen and I'm not going to pay them their increase because the President says I should cut back on my spending?

The fact is I'm as worried as anybody else about inflation, but I don't know what I can do about it. I just don't see where I can cut my spending an appreciable amount.

The thing that's got me more worried than anything else, though, is that after Nixon's Thursday night speech I'm equally as sure that he doesn't have any solutions.

The economy of America founders, while a President who's obsessed with winning elections and playing at foreign policy, gives away nuclear reactors to every country cousin in the Middle East.

Somebody in this country is going to have to bite the bullet to stop inflation. My jaws are sore from the strain.

One of the most pleasant evenings I've spent in awhile I spent last Tuesday in the home of the Carl Millers.

Carl invited me over to play guitar with a couple of old-timers here. He warned me I'd have a tough time keeping up with the two fellows he was inviting.

After I'd heard them, I just put my guitar down and listened.

Otis Gaston and L. D. Caldwell can flat play that country music.

They're two of the best pickers and strummers I've ever heard and their repertoire spans years, from Bob Wills classics to Hank Williams to Johnny Cash.

Otis plays lead most of the time and he can pick out any tune, whether he's heard it before or not.

L. D. plays back-up with a vigor and obvious relish that is infectious. And, he can belt out the songs himself.

Chairman Rodino of the House Judiciary Committee erred Wednesday night when he made his speech opening the debates on whether the committee should vote out articles of impeachment on the President.

Rodino said the word "justice" was derived from the name of the Roman Emporer Justinian, who codified Roman law.

In fact, I understand, the word "justice" does come to the English from Latin, but from the Latin root word "ius," a noun meaning right, justice or law. Several other Latin words use the "ius" root and probably Justinian's name was derived from the Latin noun.

Recycling Paper Urged

Dear Carroll:

Response to the article about Heritage Woman's Club's project of collecting newspaper for recycling has been very encouraging; many people have evidenced an interest.

At the present time, however, we are short on personnel and facilities to conduct a city-wide drive, but plans are being made among other groups to do so, hopefully in the near future. Until that time, those who are interested in recycling their newspapers and magazines (and at the same time be helping fund the "Worlds of Nature" Park which this entire area will be able to use and enjoy) can do so by taking their papers to the TG&Y Family Center parking lot in Wolflin Village, or to Panhandle Recycling Inc., 1220 E. 10th in Amarillo.

Those who are incapacitated in some way and are unable to transport their papers should call me around the middle of each month, at which time Heritage Club will be taking up the membership collection, and I will make arrangements to secure them, but I do want to encourage other interested individuals to take responsibility for transporting their items when possible.

Most sincerely,
Janie Loudder 655-4042

Two Canyon High Students Win In Debate Contest

Richard McDonald and John Watkins, students at Canyon High School, captured the first place trophy for standard debate team at a two day tournament at North Texas State University in Denton, Texas. The tournament

The topic is "Resolved: That the United States should significantly change the method of selecting Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates." This topic will be used in all debate contests held during the coming year.

Miss Brazzil-Gilbert Pledge Marriage Nuptials In Calvary Baptist Church

Double ring marriage ceremonies for Connie Fay Brazzil and Stephen Lynn Gilbert were read Friday evening at Calvary Baptist Church in Canyon with Darold Baldwin of the First Baptist Church officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brazzil, 2412 10th Avenue, Canyon. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Gilbert, 237 Elm Street, Hereford.

A background arrangement of three 15-branch candelabra banked with palm greenery and bearing light blue tapers framed the wedding altar which was highlighted with a large arrangement of white gladioli, white mums and blue ponpoms. # Canyon AL Wins First Game But Misses District Title

Shardee's Radar Rusty is in Arizona being prepared for a season of field trials which will run from August 10 until the middle of November. The dog is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Dee Nix who train and work the dog on an amateur basis.

Dog In Preparation For Field Trials

According to Mrs. Dee Nix, many field trials for hunting dogs across the country are at the point of limiting the number of entries because of the growth in the popularity of the trials.

The Nix family are owners of four Brittany Spaniels, an English Setter, two pointers and a litter of Brittany pups. They have entered one of the Brittany Spaniels in field trials since 1970. Shardee's Radar Rusty, a five year old Brittany Spaniel, is presently in Arizona under the tutelage of a professional trainer as he is being prepared for the coming season. He has had several wins over the past four years including Open Puppy in West Texas trials in 1970, open derby in 1970, amateur gun dog in 1971-1974, open all age in 1972 at the West Texas trials, Buffalo GSP and Sunland, open gun dog in 1972 at Buffalo GSP, amateur all-age in 1972 for Top 'O Texas, amateur shooting dog in 1974 amateur field trials in Eastern New Mexico, and open shooting dog in April 1974 in Eastern New Mexico trials.

According to Mrs. Nix, around 70 to 100 dogs are entered at every trial held over the past year. One of the reasons for the growth of the sport according to Mrs. Nix is that many people are not able to hunt in the wide open spaces as they once did. They have found a shortage of hunting range but still like the pleasure of working with their dog and seeing the results of their work in a well trained dog. She said that the field trials were a good way to see the results of the training that has been given the dog.

Field trials for the dog are also an opportunity for the family to spend the weekend in a "back to nature setting." She said that often the family can camp out as they await the opening of the trials which is usually on a Saturday morning around 7 a.m. The field trial continues for the whole day usually ending at sundown. The dogs are followed on horse back by the judges and their owners. During this time the dog is observed with notation of good and bad responses made.

A field trial lasts usually two to three days. Two dogs work for 30 minutes and must, during this time, point and hold quail. Points are accumulated during the 30 minute trial. Nix served as a judge at several trials during the past year. He states that one of the biggest problems of being a judge is to stay in the saddle from sun up to sun down for two days. Judges must be qualified and approved by AKC and must be willing to ride in all types of weather, from sunshine to rain, according to Nix.

Field trials for this season will start August 10, in Flagstaff, Ariz. Other trials will be held in San Angelo, Lovington, N.M., Pampa, Decatuar, and Oklahoma. Three trials will be held in Decatuar including the Texas Brittany Championship. Three trials will also be held in Oklahoma.

The season will end in November with the National trials in Ardmore, Okla. To qualify for the national finals a dog must win first place in an open all-age category. A dog must qualify in this way each year unless it has won the National Open in which case it is qualified to enter again as often as it is run. The Amateur National Open is also held in November.

Although Nix judged in trials last year, he will devote his time this year to working with the younger dogs until they are old enough to start full preparation for field trials by working with the older dogs. In working with Rusty, the younger dogs will gain experience. Rusty has placed in every stake in which he has been entered.

According to Mrs. Nix, one of the areas of training when the dog is young is to be sure that it will not be gun shy. Mrs. Nix stated that they fire cap pistols around the younger dogs when performing this training.

An area that is used to train the dogs for the field trials is Buffalo Lake. The lake area cannot be used from March 1 to August 1 because of the migrating birds and the possibility of snakes. Those who are preparing their dogs in this area for field trials hope that it will be possible to hold a sanctioned field trial at Buffalo Lake in the future.

Presently the Nix's are building a kennel for large dogs, preferably hunting dogs, on their 150 acres. They hope that people will be able to keep their dogs in the kennel and also use the surrounding land for training purposes. Several people in the Canyon-Amarillo area have hunting dogs that are entered in the trials each year. They hope to have the kennel finished by September.

The Nix's have an amateur standing for the field trials. Others in the area who are involved in training and working dogs in field trials are R. C. Busteed, a professor at WTSU, Bud Higginbotham and Morris Bankhead.

First Tournament Set By Golf Association

The first tournament sponsored by the Hunsley Hills Golf Association will be held Wednesday and Thursday, July 31 - August 1 at the Hunsley Hills course. A nine-hole tourney will be held each week on Wednesdays and Thursdays and will be open to members of the association.

The golfers will be allowed half of their handicap off their final score in the tournament. A golfer of the week will be named. Ten per cent of the weekly prize will be put into the association's fund for an all-association tournament that will be held later in the year.

Golfers must compete in the weekly tournaments to be eligible to play in the all-association tourney. The exact number of tournaments that must be entered will be announced later.

Prior to the beginning of play of the first weekly tournament, members of the association will be given ballots to vote for officers of the association. Members will elect a president, vice president, secretary and two other board members.

Myron Dees, member of the local association, said that he hopes women will also become involved in the work of the association. Dees stated that the purpose of the association is primarily to be a receiver of suggestions made by golfers to assist in the improvement of the Hunsley course.

Dees said, "There is no doubt that Hunsley Hills is the best layed-out golf course in the Panhandle area."

Dees feels that the local course will be an asset to Canyon and the whole community. He said that most of the area country clubs' membership rolls are filled and the Hunsley course will become even more popular because of this fact.

Dees hopes that the Hunsley Hills course can be made one of the best around during the next year. He feels that the golfers association will be a key in the improvement. Dees was a member of a golf association in another area prior to his move to Canyon to become head of the physical education department at WTSU.

According to Dees, the directors of the association will draw up by-laws and give structure to the membership.

Membership in the association will be open to any golfer at any time. Membership dues are $3 per person. To join, contact Dale Newman, golf pro at the Hunsley Hills course.

More Than 30 Entered In Hunsley Hills Tourney

More than 30 teams have signed up for the Partnership Tournament being held at Hunsley Hills Golf course today.

Contestants in the tournament were treated to a catfish fry on Friday night prior to the start of the two day affair.

Sideline Views

By JIM ROGERS

During the off season in the sports world there is usually more activities for one to participate than there are those worthy of writing about. Tennis, golf, a pick up baseball, basketball or football game is always around to attract the attention of the sports minded.

Granted a few noteworthy contests are still going on yet not as many as will be seen this fall. In the fall, football season will rise to its place of student and fan participation and there will be a lot to write about. Varsity, junior varsity, for the first time in Canyon High history a sophomore team and the junior high teams will demand a lot of the sports minded individual's time.

In the meantime, one can get interested in his own exercise instead of that of others. One man once said, most people spend the majority of their life sitting back watching someone else perform to the best of their ability. During the off season, everyone can get into the sports act.

Among those activities one can participate in is bowling. Bowling has been said to be an expensive game. When one bowls, he must pay the cost of each game and if he does not have the proper shoes he must rent them. If one gets into bowling in a big way and buys his own shoes and a ball and bag the cost of the game becomes a small investment.

According to Shawn Potter, who works at the WTSU Activities Center and is the secretary for the winter bowling leagues there, bowling is still a popular sport inspite of the cost. He said that bowling and pool are the only two sports that one has to pay to play at the AC but even when things slow down the bowling alley is usually crowded.

There are bowling teams in Canyon. Some bowl in Amarillo and a few bowl at the AC. According to Potter, the leagues at the AC are ABC sanctioned and several of the teams are sponsored by local groups. The Knights of Columbus at Umbarger sponsors an Umbarger team, The Only Place, Palo Duro Car Wash, Pizza Hut, First National Bank and West Texas State Bank also sponsor teams. Two teams do not have sponsors. These leagues bowl usually during the fall and winter months though there are some summer leagues.

Bowling is another of those presently heralded lifetime sports. The young and old can play and there are muscles in the body that are used that one never knew he had. There is a style to bowling just as there is in any sport but the possibility of learning the bowling technique is great.

During these hot summer days, take the family to an air conditioned lane and enjoy yourself and prepare those muscles for cheering the home team on in the coming football season.

Win, lose or draw, Ken Williams, Keith Keeling and the Canyon American Legion baseball team are to be commended for their fine play during the season. Their sportsmanship and good attitude is a fine mark in their behalf.

Those responsible for the American Legion tournament held in Canyon this past week did a fine job of coordination and are to be thanked for bringing the excitement of the game of baseball to Canyon.

Former Eagle And Buff Basketball Player Named Coach At Alice

Kyle Sunderman, who played basketball for the Canyon High School Eagles and the WTSU Buffaloes, has been named as head basketball coach at Alice High School in Alice, Tex. Sunderman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sunderman of Canyon, is the youngest 4-A head coach in the state at the age of 23.

Kyle Sunderman

Sunderman played four years with the WT Buffaloes from 1969 until 1973. He played on the varsity for three years. He was graduated with a major in physical education and political science.

During his junior year at WT, Sunderman was awarded the fighting heart award. He was a starter for WT his junior and senior year until he broke his ankle during his senior year.

Following graduation from WT, he toured the Orient with an AAU basketball team sponsored by a Christian Missionary organization. The tour included the Philippine Islands, Malaysia, Singapore and Hong Kong where they played national Olympic teams. On the tour, he averaged 25 points per game.

Sunderman had signed to play pro basketball in Mexico but decided not to play when hired by the Alice school.

Sunderman will be getting married Wednesday to Belinda Prather, an employee at the First National Bank of Canyon.

WTSU Buffalo Named As Outstanding College Athlete

Juan Garza, member of the WTSU Buffalo football team, has been included in the 1974 volume of Outstanding College Athletes of America. Garza competed with a number of athletes across the country for honors given by the publishers of the book.

Gene Mayfield, head coach for the Buffaloes, stated that Garza has not only fine athletic ability but also a high academic standing.
